

Abstract

A door handle assembly attachable to a door. The door handle assembly includes a handle coupled to the door and a latch bolt coupled to the handle and movable along a latch bolt axis between an extended position and a retracted position. An attachment member 5 defines an attachment axis. The attachment member is movable relative to the handle between a first position and a second position.